Miho had a dog. His name was Ron. Every morning she got up early and took him for a walk. Before they went back home, they always visited the park near their house and sat under the biggest tree in the park. There she talked to him about her school life, friends and family. He always watched her and listened to her stories. After she talked, he always barked at her once. He looked happy and she thought that he could understand her well. She loved her time with Ron.

Miho became a junior high school student. She joined the volleyball club. She practiced early in the morning and after school. She was busy every day, so she didn't spend much time with Ron. Before she went to school, she always said to Ron, "I'm sorry, Ron." He looked very lonely.

One day, when Miho was a second year student, she became captain of the volleyball club. She was very happy and wanted to tell it to her family soon. After she practiced volleyball, she ran to her house. But her parents weren't there. Then, she thought, "I should tell it to Ron too." She ran to Ron and said, "Ron, I became captain!" He didn't look at her. She said, "Ron, are you listening to me?" He didn't move. "Look at me! I'm talking to you! Well, if you don't want to listen to me, I will not talk to you!" said Miho and went into the house. Then, her parents came back home. She told them that she became captain. Her father said, "I'm glad to hear that. You should understand each player to make a good team." Miho said, "Thanks, Father. I'll do that!"

The next day, during dinner, her father said, "I think Ron is a little strange these days." "Really?" said Miho. "When I took him for a walk, he usually walked slowly and sometimes stopped. I think he is old and can't see or hear well," said her father. Then, she said to herself, "He can't?" Her father said, "And... Ron often sat under the biggest tree in the park and didn't want to move for a long time." "Under the tree?" said Miho and ran to Ron. She said, "Ron, I'm so sorry..."

The next morning, Miho walked slowly with Ron to the park. They sat under the biggest tree for a while. Miho thought, "This is our favorite place." Then she said slowly, "Ron, when we come here, we always have a wonderful time. Will you come here with me again? I will try to understand you." Ron looked at Miho and barked at her once.

6 次の英文を読んで、1, 2, 3, 4の問いに答えなさい。

A long time ago, it was difficult for people to get salt in America. But wild animals knew where salt was, so people followed them to get salt. When people saw many wild animals which were licking the ground, people could get salt there. So, they thought it was a good idea ⁽¹⁾ to build a village near there.

Today, salt is still very important for us. You may think we get much salt from the sea. But people in the world can get only about one third of all salt from the sea. Then how do we get the other salt? We get it from rock salt.

But in Japan, we can't find rock salt. Also, we can get only about fifteen percent of all the salt we need from the sea. This is a big problem. ⁽²⁾ So, Japan has to buy much salt from foreign countries.

Why do we need a lot of salt? You may think that we use it only for our food. In Japan, only about thirteen percent of all the salt we need is used for our food, and we use much salt ⁽³⁾ for other purposes. For example, when we make many important things in our life, like plastics, we use salt. Also, farmers use salt for their animals on their farms.

Now you understand that salt is used in many places in your life. You should always remember that we can't .

[注] salt=塩 wild=野生の lick=～をなめる build=～をつくる
one third=3分の1 rock salt=岩塩 also=さらに
